Style Show-Contest Of Villages Big Events At Mokena Carnival

The Carnival and Bazaar which was given by the Mokena School P. T. A. last Friday and Saturday evenings was a huge success. Capacity crowds attended both evenings.

Friday evening, the main part of the program was "The Contest of The Villages" in which an 8th grade student, having been chosen by his class through elimination, represented his village.

Mr. Milton Geuther, chairman of that part of the program, introduced Mr. Everett Cooper, Mayor of Mokena, who introduced the Principal of the visiting schools, who in turn presented their contestant. The order of their appearance was designated thru choosing a number, and therefore Mr. John Oster, principal of the New Lenox Grade School presented Ann Archibald, who told in five minutes why "New Lenox Was A Good Place In Which To Live."

Ann brought out many fine points and was well received. Next, Mr. Walter Flerke of Tinley Park, presented Donald Goessel, who had much to say about his town and received a rousing ovation.

Mr. John Rogers, principal of Orland presented Donna Cowan, a student of both the 7th and 8th grades this year. She told of her town in a well poised manner and with a clear voice bringing out the good points of Orland.

Last was the Mokena contestant, James Needham. He presented his high points in a constructive manner and was also well received.

When the judges turned in their verdict it was found that Donna Cowan 11 years old of Orland was chosen first and Ann Archibald, age 12 of New Lenox second.

On Saturday night, the much talked about style show took place under the direction of Mrs. Hugo Neithammer. Many days and hours were spent by Mrs. Neithammer in bringing this show to the public.

Beautiful gowns of nearly 100 years ago were modeled by young ladies of this modern age, who wore the gowns with dignity and grace.

The Seaver Floral Shop in Joliet donated the use of their white carpet the laying of which created a center isle on which each model walked down and then back to her place on the stage of the gym.

Mrs. Fredrick Whitlark was the narrator who described each gown as to its beauty, age and ownership.

There were children's gowns from ages of two years; young school children with their slates; confirmation gowns; society suits and dresses; and then the wedding gowns, in all their splendor, from 60 years ago to the present time, with the bridesmaids who were not the least, by any means.

The last model was the most recent bride, Mrs. Lloyd Leyerle, the former Marjorie Marti, who wore her own brocaded satin wedding gown, and climaxed the show by throwing her bouquet into the waiting hands of the many bridesmaids.

Mrs. Howard Strassenburg played appropriate music on the piano as each model walked down the aisle.

Everyone present enjoyed the presentation to the fullest extent. Each evening the P. T. A. Chorus favored with special numbers. On Friday night they sang a group of familiar old songs which were pantomimed by Phyllis and Judy Howes, and Dickie Gillette who silently acted out "Old Folks At Home", "Yankee Doodle" and others.

An enjoyable co-incident was the unexpected meeting of old friends, Mr. Oster of New Lenox and Mr. Rogers of Orland Park, who have not met since they were room mates at the McKendree college at Lebon, Ill., in 1926. Also Mr. Oster had not seen Mrs. Milton Geuther since they taught in the same school in 1932.

J. F. SCHMAEDEKE ORLAND BUSINESS MAN DIES SUDDENLY

The community of Orland Park was shocked and grieved Tuesday morning when they learned of the sudden death of Mr. John F. Schmaedeke, International Implement dealer.

Mr. Schmaedeke had not been feeling quite up to par lately and was considering a checkup by his physician. As he was waiting on Mr. Irvin Yunker of Orland Park that morning about 9:30, he toppled over into the arm of Mr. Yunker, who caught him and prevented him from falling further. Death was instant.

Mr. Schmaedeke had quite a colorful and active life. He was born on February 23, 1880, in Matteson, Ill., the son of the late William and Sophie Schmaedeke. When he was about six years old he moved with his parents to Alpine, Ill., where his parents conducted a general merchandise store. While living in Alpine John attended the Doctor school.

July 1, 1901 he was united in marriage with Miss Minnie Storz of Orland Park. At that time he conducted a general merchandise store in the present place of business until about a year ago when he sold out and with his son Orville, entered the Farm Implement business, handling the International Harvester products.

During the time he had the general store he was Postmaster of Orland Park for 18 years. In all he was in business in Orland Park for 32 years. He was active in civic affairs; a former trustee of Christ Lutheran church and at the time of his death a member of the Orland Park Village board.

It was Nov. 23, 1919, when he in company with Dr. W. R. Schussler, J. H. Moore and August Witt met and organized the Orland Park State Bank. Surviving beside his wife are three daughters, Mrs. Adella Wood and Mrs. Lucille Barton both of Orland Park and Mrs. Hazel Nash of Blue Island; three sons, August of Indianapolis, Ind., Orville and Martin of Orland Park; 8 grand-children; a brother William of Vicksburg, Mich., and a sister, Mrs. Emma Burkhardt of Chicago.

To Dedicate Memorial At Mokena Nov. 11

LEAST WE FORGET

Twenty-eight years ago this November 11, 1918, at 11 a. m. the State Department announced that the Armistice was signed ending the War between Germany and the Allied Governments.

Let us again pause on this Armistice Day and pay tribute to those who gave their lives on the battlefields of Flanders and let us also remember the boys who are still confined to the hospitals because of wounds received in defending our cause.

And while we honor the dead and offer prayers for the sick and wounded we should give thanks for those who were safely returned that they might in civilian life again, join with their comrades of World War 2, in keeping our ideals, and maintaining our standards the highest on Earth.

In memory and honor of the departed comrades, the Wm. Martin Post, No. 725, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will dedicate a monument at the Veteran's Plot in St. John cemetery in Mokena, on Armistice Day, Monday Nov. 11 at 2:30 o'clock.

The members of the Post will meet at the Hatch hall at 2 P. M. and proceed from there to the cemetery to hold appropriate services.

Commander Don Neal has extended a personal invitation to not only all American Legion Posts, Veterans of Foreign Wars Posts, Auxiliaries and Civic Organizations but to all citizens, to take part in this dedication. "Fragrant is their memory. The thoughts they left behind mark the miles they traveled down the pathway of our mind."

BOEZIN—SWINFORD POST

Frankfort American Legion Post 1095 has been named in memory of Stanley Boezin and Don Swinford who were killed in action during World War II.

Plans are being made for a public installation of officers and initiation of members to be held the last week in November. Norton Blaylock was placed in charge of a committee to make arrangements for a dance.

TO HEAD CHRISTMAS SEAL DRIVE

Mrs. Hugo Neithammer, Mrs. Elmer Cooper, Mrs. Florence Hollstein, and Mrs. Elizabeth Cappel have been named as the committee which will direct the 1946 Christmas Seal sale in the Mokena and Frankfort communities according to an announcement made by Dr. Gayle N. Hufford, president of the Will County Tuberculosis association. The drive will open in two weeks.

A committee has been appointed in New Lenox and is composed of the following ladies. Mrs. L. E. Frey, Mrs. Burton Gillette, Mrs. Louise McCann, Miss Caroline Bentley, Mrs. William Tibbetts, Mrs. George Webster, Mrs. Charles Ellis, Mrs. Stephen Sergeant and Mrs. Mary J. Marshall.

"We are deeply gratified that we shall have committees of this caliber to head our annual fund raising campaign," said Dr. Hufford. "We know that the contribution which they will make to our program to prevent and control tuberculosis will extend beyond Seal sale time into the year ahead when Seal sale funds will go to work to improve the health of our communities."

Mrs. Neithammer and Mrs. Frey have reported that the committees have been working hard preparing the mailing list to send out the Christmas Seals. The lists are practically ready to be mailed at this date.

The workers on the committees have commented on the enthusiastic reception already given to this drive. They report the people are very appreciative of the service of the Will County Tuberculosis association especially to the free X-ray survey.

The tuberculosis association offers the following service: Tuberculin Testing in Schools, Mass Chest X-Ray Service, Health Talks, Health Movies, Health Poster Service, Health Literature, Free Tuberculin to Physicians, and Rehabilitation Service.

The financial support of the Will County Tuberculosis association is derived entirely from the Seal sale campaign.

Fears Housing May Get Worse

Not Until Turn of Year Will Demand Begin to Level Off, Says Wyatt.

WASHINGTON. — The housing shortage will get worse, not better, this winter, warns Housing Expediter Wilson W. Wyatt. He said 287,110 houses of all kinds had been completed so far this year. He hopes thousands more will be ready before winter.

In a monthly report he added: "Constantly rising demand at present more than offsets the additional accommodations . . . and not until after the turn of the year will the demand begin to level off."

The price tags on new G.I. houses were too high for the average veteran, Wyatt declared. He asserted that at the end of July half of the G.I. houses planned were to sell for $7,500 or more. Another obstacle in the government's plans to have 1,200,000 veteran houses and apartments started in 1946 was a labor shortage.

Meanwhile W. A. Bryant, chief of the civilian production administration's consumer durable goods division, said a veteran who succeeded in buying one of Wyatt's houses might have trouble furnishing it. Bryant said hardwood production had doubled, a fact now showing up at furniture factories. But demand is two to three times greater than in 1941, he said, declaring that all wood furniture would probably be short for another year or two. He said that upholstered furniture was in somewhat better supply.

60,000 Homes Finished. Wyatt's report said that of the 287,000 new dwellings completed through July, only 194,200 were permanent houses and apartment units. The rest were trailers, conversions of existing buildings, or surplus war housing put to re-use.

Only about 60,000 of the individual permanent homes started in 1946 have been finished, which means that a majority of the dwellings begun under veterans' housing priority are standing in various stages of completion.

From 85 to 90 per cent of all new dwellings completed under the national housing program this year

MEN NOT AT WORK . . . When the members of the National Maritime union go picketing they go to it in a big way, as one can see from this panorama of marching men and picket signs. Several thousand maritime workers paraded from 17th street and Broadway to the offices of the American Merchant Marine institute at 11 Broadway, New York, where they staged a mass picket line. It lasted two hours. Strike leaders said that the purpose of the demonstration was to bring pressure on ship owners to sign an agreement to end the strike.

CALLED TO WHITE HOUSE . . . Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, American ambassador to Moscow, shown as he left White House conference with President Truman.

IT IS my belief that after 1946, Army and Navy will fade out of the football picture, as far as winners are concerned.

Sure, they had all the best of it in 1944 and 1945. But 1946 will be different, as Navy already has found out and Army is finding out.

It must be admitted that Army and Navy had the breaks in the two war years of 1944 and 1945. But when the war ended, it was a new story. After 1946 every one knows Army and Navy won't have a chance against the inducements offered all over the map. Army and Navy can't match these lures.

By inducements I mean something more than scholarships. I mean direct pay, which may range from $5,000 to $10,000 a season, more or less. This is important to the poorer kids who seem to make the better football players.

Star football players no longer are going to schools where there is strict discipline and no financial help. They are an integral part of the United States—the cash comes first.

This applies to both coaches and players. Unfortunately, the world-wrecking war also tore a heavy gash into sportsmanship, the old idea of a "fair field and no favor, may the best man win."

Sportsmanship is now a word you find in the dictionary.

Football's Top Target

When you've piled up a long string of consecutive victories over a period of two and a half seasons, you know what you are in football.

You are the top target of the year, the one they all want to knock over, especially the one who will get there first with the blackjack or the club.

Week after week, they were all after Army. First it was Villanova, then Oklahoma, Cornell and Michigan. Then came Columbia, Duke, West Virginia and the crucial test with Notre Dame. Pennsylvania and the Navy clash will end the fray.

Most of the others run two, three and four deep. Army runs less than two deep. Notre Dame runs deeper than all the others, three and four deep.

But they still can play only 11 men at a time. This is something of a fallacy in this modern game, where they wear out quicker than they ever did in the old days. Maybe the pace is faster. Maybe they are not as rugged as they used to be. Who knows?

Army's Red Blaik, a fine coach and an old friend from many years, never thought he could go through this 1946 schedule unbeaten.

The Way of the Mob

(To Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio and Eddie Arcaro)

All you who get the cheering And the plaudits from the mob, Who shrink because they bawl you Out upon some off-day job, Who scowl because they call you names

That no one likes to hear, Who keep the welkin ringing from The hoarse hoot to the cheer, Who build you up and knock you down,

From here to kingdom come, Remember as the game goes on— They never boo a bum.

I've heard them hiss Hans Wagner And I've heard them snarl at Cobb, I've heard them holler "Take him out,"

With Matty on the job. I've heard them curse when Ruth struck out— Or Speaker missed a play.

For 40 years I've heard them ride The heroes of their day. I've heard their roaring welcome Switch to something worse than hum,

But Eddie, Ted and Joe, get this— They never boo a bum.

Ted Williams could never hit his earlier stride after Labor Day.

A good point was made in suggesting that Ted was letting too many near strikes—balls an inch or so away from the plate—slide by through his unerring judgment of balls and strikes.

This could be true since it is difficult to get your swing moving in the split fraction of a second needed in following a pitch that far.

Ted is a great swinger, but even the greatest need a little more time to get the bat under way with full power back of the motion. A pitch two inches off the plate is just as easy to hit as one over the corner.

But any way you look at it, Williams dropped a bundle of prestige since the slump overtook him back in early September. It carried right on to the end of the season, and the world series. The boos sounded particularly bitter in his ears, it is reported. Well, that's the way in sports—and in life.

Corner Shelf and Colorful Cookie Box

THERE is magic in the flowing curves of this bracket shelf. Place it at eye-level in a corner of a small room and you have a feeling that the corner has melted away and the walls pushed back to add space.

The shelf is ten inches deep and fifteen wide. It will hold a number of small things, or you can make a wooden cookie box for it like the one shown here.

Pattern 266 gives an actual-size cutting guide and directions for making the corner bracket shelf, also directions and large diagrams for making the box and a stencil pattern for decorating it in these quaint cookie-eating Tyrolean figures. W-N-U SERVICE

Mark Darrell, young American lumberman, is boss of a lumber camp near St. Victor, Canada. Nat Page is his assistant. Madame Madeleine Kinross, a young widow who owns the timberland, is trying to persuade Mark to cancel his lease. Her lawyer, Horace Broussac, makes Mark several cash offers to get out, the last a sum of $15,000. Broussac tells Mark that he intends to marry Madame Kinross. Mark, who has fallen in love with her himself, determines to stay. Later he goes to Madeleine, and finds her arguing with Broussac, who has asked her to marry him. Mark interrupts the stormy conversation and Broussac leaves, hurling threats at Mark. Madeleine and Mark talk of love.

CHAPTER VI

"These three say that my husband was lost in the fog when he was on the ice-floe, killing the seals. They say he drifted away. But they whisper and mutter together. There is something that they have not told me. I know that he is alive, being cared for somewhere, and that some day he will return. And meanwhile it is my duty to take care of the seignior." "And Broussac?" asked Mark.

"He is a distant relative of my husband's. I trusted him. Now he demands that I shall marry him. I do not love him; and anyway, how could I marry him when my husband is alive?"

She came closer to Mark; he put his hands upon her shoulders and she swayed toward him.

"I never loved the seignior. I married him half-an-hour before the fleet sailed for the sealing-grounds, to protect the little property that my father had left. He was the lighthouse-keeper then. I never loved the seignior, but he was not a girl within fifty miles of St. Victor but was in love with him. He was the sort of man a woman loves, Monsieur Darrell, because he was so rash, heedless, careless, as if the things of the world were all his toy."

"He had begged me to marry him since I was thirteen years old. I did not love him, but I was fascinated by him. And, if I married him, my father's little property would remain secure."

"Father Lacombe married us half-an-hour before the sealing fleet sailed for Newfoundland, and I have not seen him since. They say he died. If he had died, I should feel it here." She struck her breast again.

"My cousin Horace Broussac managed the estate. He lost a great deal of money—I do not know how—and he was forced to make you a lease of the mill and those three thousand arpents. Later, he made some money for me in the market. And so I want you to go, because I must protect the seignior of my husband. Will you go?"

"Madame, you have signed a lease with me. Your request is not fair to me, or my backers."

"But Horace wants to marry me." She was speaking like a frightened child. "He told me that I must marry him, and that the seignior must be intact. How can I marry him when my husband is still alive? I was a child when I married him, to save my father's property. I am afraid of him. I am afraid of being his wife. But he is my husband, and he is still alive."

Madeleine Admits Her Love for Mark

"They know it, those old men. That is why they mutter. That is why old Andre hates you so. They know something that they have not told me—Andre, and Alphonse Vitard, and Hector Mackintosh, who sailed on the same boat with him. Yes, and Monsieur Lacombe, the cure, knows it too. They know that my husband is not dead. And Horace Broussac demands that I marry him."

Mark drew Madeleine into his arms, but only as he might have caressed a frightened child. "I love you," he said simply. He saw her big gray eyes looking at him in terror and fascination. He knew this woman was his for the taking.

"Darling, your husband is not alive," he said. "You have lived in a dream about him. And that marriage was never a marriage. You were a child then. That marriage has cursed your life, and it was no marriage."

"Oh yes, it was a marriage," she answered. "I am the wife of the seignior of St. Victor." A little proudly. "You don't know what a man he is. He can bend any woman to his will. There is not a man in St. Victor who would dare to cross him. He can tear a pack of cards in two with his fingers. And he is just a child who has never grown up. Do you not see that it is my duty to protect his seignior for him? Because he is not dead, and he is coming back."

She swayed in Mark's arms, and then suddenly she gave her lips to his. "Yes, I love you," she said. "I loved you from the first. You knew that, didn't you? And I am a married woman, and I must tell Father Lacombe that I have sinned in loving you. And he tells me that the seignior is dead, when I know he is not dead."

"Madeleine," said Mark, "Madeleine, darling, your husband died on the ice-floe five years ago. If he had lived, he would return."

"He will return!" cried the girl desperately. "Monsieur, will you protect me against Horace Broussac? Will you save me from him?" "I will," said Mark.

"I cannot marry. I am not free to marry, neither Horace nor you. But we are no longer enemies. And I care no longer what Horace Broussac does with my lands—because whatever may happen, I love you!"

The last log of lumber had passed through the mill along the flume, and into the hold of the second of the waiting schooners. These had departed for Quebec. Soon there would be an additional ten thousand dollars to Mark's credit—not much, but enough to enable him to face the long period before the lumber would come whirling down the St. Victor again, and to make a few improvements on his lease.

Leaving Nat to take charge of the mill and the bookkeeping, he started to repair the corduroys over the swampy districts, and the drags along which the felled trees were drawn to the skids at the edge of the gorge. All day long the sounds of axe and hammer rang through the trees.

Mark had picked out one particular tract that he meant to log the coming winter. It lay on high ground, well back from the river, near the natural bridge that connected the mainland with the light-house peninsula. Wide swaths would have to be cut in the underbrush to bring the fallen trees to the sawyer's camp beside the gorge, but the proceeds promised to be profitable. Broussac's efforts in the past had been decidedly unwoodsmanlike. He had been cutting timber here and there promiscuously, with the idea of a quick profit.

Mark decided to take up his headquarters here. He had a shack built in the thick of a heavily timbered belt where the land rose to join the natural bridge. There, after his men had departed for their homes, he would spend the evening, thinking—always thinking of Madeleine.

A Conference With The Parish Priest

"I cannot marry. I am not free to marry, neither Horace nor you," she had said to him. Was there anything to that idea of hers that the seignior had somehow survived, five years after he was reported drowned at sea?

He couldn't believe it—and yet it was a fixed and dominating idea in the girl's mind. She had kissed him, told him she loved him, but that idea of hers stood between them, and probably would always stand.

She had told him that the reason why the three men hated him—Andre, Mackintosh and Vitard—was because they knew the seignior was alive. They resented his presence there. So did all St. Victor, as if it foresaw the love affair that was destined to spring from it.

In the night, brooding, Mark would see the one-two, one-two of the lighthouse flashes, and when the fogs choked the Gulf, he would hear the steady, throbbing note of the foghorn. Years seemed to have gone by since that night when Nat and he had been cast ashore in the storm. And Mark hadn't seen Madeleine again. He knew that she did not want to see him.

Then what of Broussac? What of his schemes to marry her? Madeleine had asked Mark to protect her against Broussac and he had promised to do so. How was it to be done?

Thinking the matter over, Mark came to the conclusion that the key to the situation lay in Father Lacombe. A parish priest knows everything. If the seignior was really alive, Father Lacombe would know. And he would know exactly what had happened when the ice-floe, carrying Kinross, was detached from the main icefield, and carried him away into the fog.

With this idea in mind, Mark followed his men down to the flat terrain in the evening, and had supper with Nat Page at the mill, now again empty and silent.

Madame Gingras, the wife of the mill superintendent, served them, making quite a little fuss over Mark. Plump little Madame Gingras was a motherly soul, and liked to put forth her best efforts to please the young bachelor who had taken over the mill. Mark didn't dream that his romance with Madeleine was already the chief subject of conversation in the settlement.

Mark was a man to be filled up with beef stew and strawberry pie. But he wasn't one of St. Victor. He was an American who would presently be gone, leaving St. Victor to itself and its own secrets, and it was too bad about the seignior's wife. Nevertheless, Madame Gingras mothered the two men, beaming in approval when Mark praised her pastry.

"Not much for me to do here, Mark," said Nat Page, as they smoked their pipes together. "I'd like to join you up in the woods."

"I'm going to ask you to take charge of the corduroy gangs," said Mark. "They're apt to be a bit slipshod unless they've got an American working over them."

"Just as you say. We've certainly made a fine start. I think we're going to put it over, Mark."

"I know we are."

"I don't trust that Broussac, though. He's up to some more mischief. I can sense it, from the way people look at me, every time I go into St. Victor."

"I've wondered what his game is," said Mark. "Of course he couldn't tell Nat about Madeleine."

"I thought he had another lessee in the field, but now I think he simply wants to get us out of St. Victor."

"He'll have his work cut out," grinned Nat. "The men are eating out of our hands."

They talked a little longer, Mark had a look at the books, and then departed into town to see Father Lacombe.

The cure lived with an old housekeeper in the house next to the big stone church. He was sitting in his study beside the stove, reading, his soutane closely buttoned about him.

"And what can I do for you, Monsieur?" he asked.

"I've come to have a talk with you, Father."

Father Lacombe Speaks Mysteriously

The cure put his book away and scrutinized Mark thoughtfully. Mark was fully conscious of the slight feeling of antagonism between them, the result of their last meeting.

"I'm not a member of your church, but I thought perhaps you would have a private and confidential talk with me. I think it is desirable."

"My son," said the cure kindly, "everybody is a member of my church, even though he may not be aware of it. What is it that you wished to speak to me about?"

"I love the wife of the late seignior. I think she loves me, or might come to love me," said Mark frankly.

He could see that this was no news to Father Lacombe, who leaned forward, his finely chiseled face scrutinizing his visitor's.

"She thinks—you are aware of it, of course—she thinks that her husband, the late seignior, did not die on that ice-floe," said Mark. "I want to know the truth. At least, I want to know what you know."

Father Lacombe looked disturbed. "Monsieur Darrell! You do not belong to St. Victor. I have advised you to return your lease to Monsieur Broussac. You have no right—I say you have no right to question me about our own affairs."

"So the seignior didn't die?" asked Mark. "Where is he, then? Is it fair to make a mystery out of nothing?"

"I have not said that the seignior is alive. I do not propose to discuss the matter, Mr. Darrell. But I will say this much—Madame Kinross is not for you. Put her out of your mind. Forget this business."

"Pardon me if I am abrupt, Monsieur," the cure continued, rising and beginning to pace up and down the room. "If you understood what it means to be a parish priest, to have so many souls, human souls dependent upon me, to try to reconcile them with their consciences—"

"I think I can understand that," said Mark. "But the question I asked you is a simple one. I have gathered that something happened to the seignior. That he was perhaps rescued from the floe. That he is being cared for somewhere."

"Monsieur Darrell, I have told you that Madame Kinross is not for you. I have advised you to accept Monsieur Broussac's terms, and go. We are the habitants. We belong here. We try to live good lives, to make our peace with God. I will not answer your questions. I say simply that Madame Kinross is not for you. Now, Monsieur, draw your own conclusions!"

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

PAUL FOUNDS THE CHURCH AT PHILIPPI

LESSON TEXT — Acts 16:11-15; Philippians 2:5-11. MEMORY SELECTION — I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.—Philippians 4:13.

Missionary zeal keeps a Christian in action for God. After a time at the church in Antioch, the urge to preach the gospel sent Paul out on his second missionary journey. This time his partner was Silas, because he and Barnabas had separated over taking Mark along, since he had turned back in the midst of the first missionary journey. Timothy took his place (Acts 16:1-5).

Our lesson is of unusual import because it tells us how the gospel first came to Europe, from whence it later came to America. Paul's efforts to continue his ministry in Asia were hindered by the Holy Spirit (Acts 16:6, 7). It was then that he was given a heaven-sent vision of a man in Macedonia crying for help. At once the party set out to obey the leading of the Holy Spirit (Acts 16:9, 10).

I. Paul's Ministry to the Philippians (Acts 16:11-15).

Philippi was an important city, a Roman colony and outpost. Apparently the Jews who had come there to live had not felt any strong desire for religious fellowship, for they had built no synagogue. Certain godly women met on the Sabbath by the riverside for prayer. Here was Paul's opportunity and he took it.

The story of the conversion of Lydia has many elements of special interest. It presents the turning point in the progress of the gospel, which by the grace and leading of God brought it northward to Europe rather than southward into Africa or eastward through Asia. Many of us have heard because of the way Paul was led, and one wonders if Europe and America might not otherwise have been the "dark continents" rather than Africa and India. We are what we are by the grace of God. He sent us the gospel through Paul that day at Philippi.

Then we note that the first convert was a woman. She was not the last woman to give an attentive ear and a believing heart to the gospel message. The church through all its history has been blessed by the readiness of women to bear and heed the gospel.

We like to note that Lydia set a pattern of hospitality and service which her sisters in the church have maintained (see v. 15). She "constrained" the visiting preachers to enjoy the comforts of her home, and thus put forward the work of Christ (see III John 5-8).

It is encouraging to observe how perfectly the leading of the Holy Spirit worked out in the experience of Paul and his brethren. The Lord sent his prepared messenger to the place where there was a prepared heart waiting to receive the Word.

We may confidently go on the errands of our God, knowing that when he leads he goes before and prepares the way. That does not mean that there will be no trials and difficulties. Paul had plenty of them (see II Cor. 11:23-33). But it does mean that we may go with the assurance of blessed results, in his name, and with the grace to bear whatever comes along the way for his glory.

The second Scripture portion of our lesson is not related to the first except that it gives a portion of the letter which Paul, by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, wrote to the church which he had helped to establish at Philippi about 12 years later.

II. Paul's Message to the Philippians (Phil. 2:5-11).

Although after Lydia's conversion Paul met opposition and suffered imprisonment (Acts 16:16-40), that was only the beginning of a blessed ministry there.

The church at Philippi though poor and persecuted was loyal and warmhearted. They sent a generous gift to Paul, who was in prison in Rome. He wrote to thank them, and his letter became a real hymn of joy and assurance. It discusses Christian experience, its principle, pattern, purpose and power.

Chapter 2 presents the mind of Christ as the pattern of true Christian living. Nothing is to be done for vain glory (v. 3), but in the spirit of Christ, who willingly gave up his glory with the Father that he might become our Saviour. It has well been said that if he had not done so, we should have been amazed at his glory, but we should never have been saved.

He who might have "grasped" (v. 6, R. V.) his equality with God, laid it aside that as a man he might die for the salvation of lost mankind (v. 8).

Little wonder that God has given him such a high and exalted position (vv. 9-11). One day every tongue shall confess that he is Lord. Hasten the day!

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backaches, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 8, was:

"EVERLASTING PUNISHMENT"

The Golden Text was:

The Lord is known by the judgment which he executeth: the wicked is snared in the work of his own hands" (Ps. 9: 16).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God. Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished that her iniquity is pardoned: for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins..." (Isa. 40: 1, 2, Isa. 43: 14, 25).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"The suppositions that sin is pardoned while unforsaken, that happiness can be genuine in the midst of sin, that the so-called death of the body frees from sin, and that God's pardon is aught but the destruction of sin,—these are grave mistakes..." (Isa. 40: 1, 2, Isa. 43: 14, 25).

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Who Gets Off Easiest—Men or Women?

Maybe you saw that poll on who has the easiest life—men or women? Of course, the men voted that the women did, and the women vice versa.

It would be the same in our town—take any family. Thad Phibbs envies his Missus spending the day at home, with no hot office to attend to. And Sue envies Thad his luncheons with the boys; and his evening glass of beer with friends (while she cleans up the dishes in the kitchen).

Of course, none of it goes very deep. Thad knows way deep down that the Missus has plenty of work running a house; and Sue knows Thad's friendly glass of beer is well-deserved relaxation after a long hard day's work.

From where I sit, most husbands and wives may grumble now and then—but they know in their hearts it's a case of live and let live, give and take, that comes out pretty even in the end.

"I'M A FARMER* IN NORTHERN ILLINOIS"

"I've farmed in Northern Illinois for about 50 years. The land is rich and it's a help to me to be near the biggest food-processing center in the country. The corn and milk I produce is only a few hours away from the large distributing center in Chicago. My family has been farming around here for a long time and we've seen this land grow more productive every year. I've brought up my children and educated them here in Northern Illinois. They're staying to work and live here, too."

This man is typical of the progressive farmers of Northern Illinois. There is an abundance of good roads and railroads to get their products to all of the country's large marketing centers. This same transportation network plus the area's diversified industrial facilities combine to provide the finest machinery and equipment with which to work.

In Northern Illinois, electricity helps make farms great producers. This Company is continuing a long-standing program of rural line extensions which today makes this service available to more than 95% of the farms in the territory. The towns serving the needs of these progressive farmers are well-developed communities with good stores, shops, sound banks, fine schools.

This Company, too, is an essential part of Northern Illinois, and has great confidence in its future. The theme of this advertisement is similar to one of a series being published in magazines and newspapers throughout the country to point out the many industrial advantages available here.

If you know of any business seeking a new location, please inform us so that in cooperation with other agencies interested in the progress of Northern Illinois, we can furnish complete factual information on the area.

It has just been announced that Student Airman Certificates issued reached an all time high during this past July 21,935 Dodos were given the OK to leave their earthly nest. And, airports are increasing at the rate of 50 a month. However, even with greatly increased interest in all phases of flying—the problem of housing planes should not be as terrific as the problem of housing humans seems to be now. CAP TO THE RESCUE!

Civil Air Patrol, the war time baby that is now growing by leaps and bounds, has offered emergency service to the Coast Guard and Red Cross. Direct from Washington, D. C. comes the news that Civil Air Patrol, an auxiliary of the AAF, composed of volunteer members who fly their own planes is ready to assist in emergency and disaster relief work. The American National Red Cross and the U. S. Coast Guard have been supplied with a complete CAP State Commanders. In the event of an emergency, rescue flights and other CAP aid will be dispatched pronto.

MODERN MAILMAN

During National Air Mail Week, Captain Dean Hill of Civil Air Patrol, will pilot his own plane between Harrisburg, Illinois and Evansville, Ind., voluntarily furnishing the air mail service between these two cities. He will have the Postmaster of Harrisburg as his "co-pilot" for the first flight.

DOLLARS ON THE WING

TWA pilots before their strike had a salary range of from $7,600 to $9,000 annually. Looks like they'll lift those salaries to new heights but in the meantime, they have caused an over-cast on the minds of their passengers by their action.

CHECK POINTS

An electropult is an electric catapult designed to launch Giant Arliners after a takeoff run of only 500 feet. The problem now is how to land them in that same space. The JATO JUMP is not a new dance, it's the same I've coined for a jet device that saves planes when the engine conks-out too low to make a good emergency landing. The Jato is flipped on and climbs the planes upward to a height where the pilot can take his pick of landing space in a wide area.

LOCAL AIRPORT NEWS

Rubinkam Airport: Russell Langenderfer, youngest son of Rubinkam's owner Mr. I. Langenderfer, was welcomed back to the "high-ways" on Sunday. Russ has been grounded by "homework" since the beginning of school last fall; AAF Lt. Bob Tracey landed his P47 on X-Country from Ga. last Thursday. Congratulations to Mrs. Ray Hinch and Mrs. Bob Blake for first solos, to Linda Tatterfield and Ronald Perkins for earning Private Licenses, Vet Jack Folly of Chicago is the new member in the licensed Mechanics lineup. A new 490 H. P. Twin engine arrived on the line last Saturday to be used for charter trips and training in the G. I. School program which started October 28th. Lumber was being unloaded for the twelve new T-Hangers to be erected in the near future.

That's ALL for NOW.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kopelman were dinner hosts in their home last Thursday evening in honor of their nephew Ralph Cagwin, who has been spending a 20-day furlough with his parents here. He left for his camp near Boston, via plane, on Sunday evening.

Other guests at the dinner party were Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Cagwin and son Willard, Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Cagwin and children and Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Depra and children.

Mrs. Wray White who celebrated her birthday Wednesday was surprised in the evening by a small group of friends from Lockport, who presented her with an elaborate birthday cake and spent the evening at the White home.

Mrs. Louis Habenicht was hostess Oct. 29 at a surprise birthday party for her mother, Mrs. Harry Reed. When Mrs. Reed was "called to the telephone" she found instead four old-time friends waiting in her daughter's living room. The day was spent in reminiscing of by-gone days, presenting the honored guest with several lovely gifts and eating the delicious dinner served by Mrs. Habenicht at noon, and also ice cream and cake before the guests' departure.

The guests were Mrs. Mary Aspel, Miss Anna Kreuger and Mrs. J. T. White, all of Lockport and Miss Caroline Martin of Lemont.

Mrs. Habenicht also had a family birthday dinner for her father on the preceding Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Marr of Oak Lawn spent Friday in the home of their cousins the Mrs. John Sproat family. Mr. and Mrs. Marr will go to Florida to make their home soon, hoping to improve his health.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bleasing are the parents of a daughter, born Oct. 25, in St. Joseph's hospital. The baby has been named Bonita (Bonnie for short) and will be a playmate to Donnie and Ronnie. Their mother is the former Hazel Schwab.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul Lutheran Church of Lockport, held their October meeting in the home of Mrs. William Ziezner last Thursday afternoon.

Relatives here have received word of the death of Mr. A. A. Bell at his home in California, Oct. 24. He was a brother of the late Mrs. C. Wells and lived on Bell Road, north of Goodings Grove when a young man.

John West had a steel splinter removed from his eye last Friday and is convalescing at Silver Cross hospital.

Mrs. Harvey Ingersol entertained the S. A. L. club of Lockport Thursday evening in her home here.

On Tuesday evening of last week, Miss Eleanor Kopelman was hostess at a seven o'clock dinner in her home, the guests being the girls of her Pinocchio club from Lockport.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob McGuire gave a birthday dinner Sunday evening, honoring the birthday anniversaries of Mr. and Mrs. Dan McGuire. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Reutiger and children of Lockport and Mr. and Mrs. Frances Miller and son.

Merle Harpster of Chicago visited his mother, Mrs. John Andean on Thursday.

The Wayside Workers Circle of King's Daughters was represented at

Whitney Carter, agent for the Rock Island in Mokena, and Harvey Frick, who holds the same position in New Lenox, are a couple of telegraph operators of the old school. A young fellow by the name of Richard Purler put in considerable time around the two depots with them and got so he could send and receive messages. Now I am not emphasizing Mr. Purler's inefficiency as a telegrapher for the purpose of belittling him because I know that if he hadn't taken a job as a towerman where all communicating is done by telephone he too would have been a lightning slinger like the two depot agents mentioned, but the thing that seemed most interesting to me was what took place on a practice set. Mr. Carter, Mr. Frick and I went to the home of Mr. Purler in New Lenox and found him asleep. Instead of waking him the two operators sat down and started a clatter on the instrument. To me it sounded like being almost far enough away from a boiler factory and had Mr. Purler been awake it would have been dots and dashes that were too hot for him to handle, but his subconscious mind could grasp everything that the sounder was saying, and for several days after he would say, "I forget just where I heard it but somebody told me that . . ."

Just thought I'd mention this incident because it seemed out of the ordinary, and then too it may be some encouragement to the ministers who may read it. If you look over the congregation and notice that some of the people are asleep just keep right on talking. The ones who are awake may not get it all but a subconscious mind can grasp wonders.

the Will Co. convention at the First Presbyterian Church, Joliet, Wednesday, by Miss Myra Reed, Mrs. Wilbur Francis, Sr., Mrs. Orville Rasmussen, Mrs. Guy Bump, Mrs. F. J. Padlock and Mrs. Ira Anderson.

Dr. Gayle N. Hufford was the convention guest speaker and vocal solos by Gilbert N. Kinne and Mrs. Donald McNabb high lighted the program.

Mrs. Glenn Miller, who is a niece of Mrs. H. B. Reed was elected county president.

The Fred Kopelmans attended a Halloween party at Taft school where their grand-daughter Darlene Depra is a pupil.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. Jake McGuire and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Miller and son were guests in the Dewey Rutiger home in Lockport Halloween evening.

The name of Mrs. Robert Jungles was unintentionally omitted from last week's list of workers on the Community Chest drive. When all reports were in they showed that $212.50 was collected from this township.

The teachers and pupils of the local schools celebrated Halloween Thursday afternoon with costume parties and merry games and eats.

Do not forget the entertainment at Homer Church Saturday evening, Nov. 9, to be presented by Marley local talent, arranged by Mrs. Bess Bush and called "Sharps and Flats in Harmony." Good music, fun and refreshments.

AT THE ROXY THEATRE

The whole town's heading to this wacky wedding to see "The Well Groomed Bride", which will be the featured attraction at the Roxy Theatre at Lockport Sunday and Monday with Olivia DeHavilland, Ray Milland and Sonny Tufts.

The last magnum of champagne in San Francisco is the cause of a hectic duel of wits between Ft. Milland, who wants it to christen a new aircraft carrier, and Olivia, who wants it for her wedding to Tufts, a legendary football player who has not gotten over it. In a madcap finish, Olivia christens the flat-top with her wedding champagne and decides to marry Milland. Tufts thereby consoles himself with a former flame.

"The Strange Love of Martha Ivers" with Barbara Stanwyck and Van Heflin will open at the Roxy Theatre Tuesday for three days.

How would you answer this

We asked a lot of folks recently how much they thought the telephone company was making in the way of earnings. The answers were surprising—and pretty far off, too.

For the most part, people thought that because there are more telephones in service and more people using them more often, our earnings must be high.

Actually, Illinois Bell's earnings were at a lower rate during the war than at any point in history except two depression years. And this year they're dropping still lower.

For one thing, our wage costs have more than doubled since 1940! And everyone knows how costs of materials have gone up. So today more cents out of every telephone dollar must go into wages, supplies and equipment to give you the kind of telephone service you want.

In short, our income has gone up; our outgo has gone up still more; our rate of earnings has gone down.

"Keep from Between Parked Cars" is the vital safety lesson being dramatized to school children this month in 38,000 classrooms throughout Indiana and Illinois in posters being distributed by the Chicago Motor Club. The illustrations originated in the ranks of school children themselves, the posters being reproductions of prize-winning drawings that they submitted in a nationwide contest. Instruction sheets accompanying the poster aid teachers to adapt the safety lessons effectively to the needs of pupils of all ages in diversified localities.

Several Mokena young people attended a Halloween party last Thursday evening in the Marley church basement given by the Sub-deb Club of Marley.

Mrs. Donald Maue entertained at a miscellaneous shower in her home last Saturday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Milton Woodrich. Airplane bunco was played with prizes going to Mesdames Herman Bruhn, Harry Cooper and Geo. Bassett. Duplicate prizes were given to the bride. A delicious luncheon was served. The bride received many lovely and useful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Woodrich left Monday morning for their home in Nashville, Tenn., where the former is employed.

Miss Shirley Bennett is confined to her home with the mumps.

The American Way

FOR GOD
AND AMERICA
By George Peck

"Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it.". Thus, in the first verse of Psalm 127, is described the virtue of God's blessing.

America was built on that precept. Washington and his men were not too proud to kneel and pray to Almighty God—and God heeded their pleas. But when the United Nations was launched at San Francisco, our present-day leaders were ashamed or afraid to invoke the Divine blessing. They did not take into account that "except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it." 'Tis said they failed to do so because they feared offending the delegates from the Communistic nations. This had all the earmarks of an admission by supposedly-Christian American that atheistic Communism is more powerful than God.

The one hope of United Nations achieving its main objective of establishing permanent world peace lies in having the spirit of Christ come to dwell in the hearts of men the world over. Mankind has tried just about everything else to bring about peace, ranging from armament to disarmament. All have failed and we still have had wars.

Shame on America that when the fist really concerted effort to stop war was initiated, and on her very own soil, that the blessing of God was not invoked to guide the deliberations of the delegates as they set about to establish a formula for permanent world peace!

Isn't it about time that we Americans resume our study of the wisdom that lies between the covers of the world's greatest book—THE HOLY BIBLE? From it our forefathers drew the strength and wisdom to found here in America the finest civilization the world has ever known.

Put the Good Book to work; inspire others to do likewise. Back the Laymen's National Committee, composed of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish—in its crusade FOR GOD AND AMERICA.

MARINE CORPS ANNIVERSARY . . . Throughout the world, members of the marine corps will pause on November 10 to recall the founding of their organization 171 years ago. They also will pause in tribute to gallant Leathernecks who gave their lives in the fierce battles of the Pacific. Here is shown the fifth marine division cemetery on Iwo Jima, with a sketch of marines in combat.

HISTORY OF HEROISM

Marine Corps To Observe
Anniversary of Founding

Traditions springing from the deeds of heroic marines down through the decades of American history will burn fiercely in the hearts of present-day Leathernecks as the U. S. marine corps observes the 171st anniversary of its founding on November 10.

At ceremonies throughout marine corps bases in continental United States as well as at outposts in Shanghai, London, Manila, Panama Canal zone and others manned by Leathernecks, the men of the corps will assemble. They will be told once again the story of the founding of the marines at Tun tavern in colonial Philadelphia on November 10, 1775, before signing of the Declaration of Independence. Wherever they gather, marines will remember with pride the men of their corps who died at Trenton, Tripoli, Manassas, Belleau Wood, Managua, Guadalcanal and Iwo Jima.

Still Protect Lives.

Although no longer fighting a war, the marines of today are as active as ever. They are back at their job of protecting lives and property, at the same time perfecting those special talents which always have distinguished them in the military field.

At Lake Success, Long Island, N. Y., marines have been selected as the representatives of our armed forces to preserve order and to maintain the security of the United Nations. Some 80 marines of the provisional guard, outfitted in new blue uniforms, take posts at strategic places to direct traffic, to answer inquiries and to check passes.

In China, as members of "cease-fire" teams—umpires in the Nationalist-Communist dispute—marines operate in the field to bring about conciliation between local factions before bloodshed can begin.

On the other side of the world, 900 miles from the North Pole, a force of marines is testing winter combat clothing and studying techniques of cold-weather campaigning—a radical change from the steaming jungles of the Solomon Islands.

Significant History.

Throughout the history of the United States, the marine corps has played an illustrious and colorful role in all conflicts. The corps' battle record commenced with the Revolutionary war in 1775. Then followed the naval war with France in 1793, the war with Barbary pirates in 1805, the War of 1812, the Indian wars of 1836, the Mexican war of 1843, Perry's expedition to Japan in 1854, the Civil war of 1861, the expedition to Korea in 1866, the Span-

Ancient Ashes Used
For Building Blocks

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—Tests under way at University of New Mexico are designed to show that ashes and cinders deposited by volcanoes in New Mexico during the Mesozoic period of several thousand years ago can be utilized as a building material to aid the postwar shortage.

Main objective of the tests is to determine the best method of manufacturing "cinder blocks" from the ancient material. Already in use in the state, the blocks are gaining popularity because of their extreme lightness and low thermal conductivity.

Experimenters are endeavoring to secure a building material which will be light, strong, fast curing and easily manufactured.

Convicts Hitch Ride—
With Prison Warden

LANSING, KAS.—Two convicts from the Kansas state penitentiary escaped from a work detail, hid in a nearby woods until nightfall and then made their way to a highway, where they hitchhiked a ride with the first car to approach. Driver of the car was Robert Hudspeth, state prison warden. Recognition was mutual, Hudspeth reported, and the prisoners offered no resistance.

ish-American war of 1898, the Boxer rebellion of 1900, World War I in 1917, the Nicaraguan revolution of 1927 and finally World War II.

In the period between wars, marines were constantly on the job protecting the lives and property of American citizens in numerous revolutions and uprisings, in civil disputes at home and in time of national disasters.

Boast of Personnel.

Heralded as the best trained, most efficient fighting organization in the world, the marine corps boasts of the esprit de corps of its personnel.

Esteemed by his nation, feared by his enemies, censured for his cockiness but respected by all, the United States marine is one of the world's most versatile and colorful fighters.

Carrying out the boast that "the marine corps takes care of its own," the organization has established a rehabilitation program designed to serve discharged Leathernecks. In the first six months of 1946, 65,000 discharged marines were counseled by letter and 35,000 by personal interview. Former marines in various fields have helped in rehabilitation of other members of the corps, this co-operation being cited as one reason for the boast that "there are no ex-marines."

Yanks' Preferences
In Music Are Varied

NEW YORK.—Musical preferences of American servicemen overseas vary considerably from those of the folks back home, it is revealed in a poll taken through Armed Forces radio stations around the world.

In Hawaii "Making Whoopee" is the favorite tune. Other preferences: Panama Canal zone, "Poker Game"; Manila, "Don't Cry Baby"; Puerto Rico, "Doctor, Lawyer, Indian Chief"; Germany, "Oh, What It Seemed To Be"; Aleutians, "I Wanna Get Married"; Austria, "Let It Snow"; Italy, "Symphony"; and Japan, "I Can't Begin To Tell You."

Bread Consumption
Reported on Decline

CHICAGO.—Bread, long known as the "staff of life," has been slipping in public esteem for 37 years, a report by National Federation of Millers discloses.

In 1919 the average American consumed 212 pounds of wheat, the report shows, while now the figure has dropped to an all-time low of 150.

Contending that people aren't eating enough bread and other wheat products, the association plans to launch a two-year campaign to restore wheat as "the No. 1 ingredient in the diet of the American people."

Skunk Is Grateful,
Benefactor Insists

HANKINS, N. Y.—Even the skunk occasionally can be grateful, Louis Hoffman admits. When a little skunk advanced toward Hoffman, discretion struggled with valor, but discretion lost. Hoffman held his ground and breath. The skunk's head was caught in a glass jar, so Hoffman bent down and gingerly pulled at the jar until the creature was free. The skunk ambled off.

Citizenship for Alien Vets

Veterans' administration announces that approximately 100,000 aliens who served in the armed forces during the war have less than two months in which to take advantage of quick citizenship under the second war powers act of 1942.

The act expires December 31 and effects all aliens who enlisted or were inducted into the service before December 28, 1945. Those affected are not required to file the customary declaration of intention and need not have lived in the U. S. for any specified time. Also, the alien petitioner is not required to speak the English language, meet any educational tests or pay any fees for filing his petition. Although this statute is administered by the immigration and naturalization service of the department of justice, VA publicized the law through its field offices and advised eligible alien veterans as to their naturalization rights. Honorably discharged aliens who wish to take advantage of the law should apply to the nearest office of the immigration and naturalization service or inquire at their nearest VA office for further information.

Questions and Answers

Q. I was discharged July 19, 1946, at Shoemaker, Calif. At that time I enlisted as a fireman first class in Class V-6, U. S. naval reserve, and was released to inactive duty. I was informed by one of the officers there that I could change my rate to seaman, first class, and get courses to advance in rate by writing to Commandant, Ninth Naval District, Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill. During the past two months I have written two letters to this commanding officer but have never received an answer. I have thought of requesting discharge to see if I could get an answer that way but I would rather be in the naval reserve if I could get my rate changed. Please advise me of any way to get action on this subject.—E. E. F., Loup City, Neb.

A. Suggest that you write direct to the Bureau of Naval Personnel, Navy Department, Washington 25, D. C., and explain your situation. You will receive a prompt answer.

Q. We have a boy buried overseas that we want brought home. Our American Legion said they were bringing all the boys home and we didn't need to put in a request, they would notify next of kin. I read in the newspapers that a request must be put in to the government, so please tell us what we must do and where to write such a request. There are many others who don't know where to write.—Mrs. O. B., Union City, Ind.

A. Write to Memorial Division, Office of the Quartermaster General, War Department, Washington, D. C., give your son's full name and all details of his death that you know. The army is now polling next of kin who desire to have their relatives returned here for final burial. Next of kin have option of requesting: (1) having remains returned to the U. S. A. for final interment in a national cemetery, the cost to be borne entirely by the government; (2) returning the remains to the States for burial by next of kin in a private cemetery, the government to pay $50 toward cost of local interment expense and all cost of shipping the body home, or (3) burying the deceased in a permanent American military cemetery overseas.

Q. My daughter's fiancé, who is a regular army man, has not given her any news since November, 1945. He was with Company A of 671st F.D. and that outfit was deactivated and he was transferred to Battery C, 223rd field artillery. He was with this last outfit when he wrote he would be home by Christmas and that was the last she heard from him. All her letters have been returned. Can you help her?—Mrs. O. T. DuB., Denver, Colo.

A. The only information I can give is that battery C, 223rd field artillery was deactivated in 1945. The army is unable to give me reassignment of personnel not eligible for discharge.

Q. I am writing you to see if I can get a mother's pension. My son is in the army overseas. Mrs. M. B., Harper, Kans.

A. No, you are not entitled to a pension. Your son, however, if he desires, may take out a monthly allotment for you.

Q. My son was killed in action and I am receiving a pension. Due to my health I am not able to work all the time. But if I should work part time, would my pension be stopped?—Mrs. M. H. W. Dalton, Ga.

A. No.

Needs No Cooking. Saves Money.

The surprise of your life is waiting for you, in your own kitchen, when it comes to the relief of coughs due to colds. In just a moment, you can mix a cough syrup that gives you about 4 times as much for your money, and is surprising for quick results. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Then put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Fill up with your syrup, and you have a full pint of really wonderful cough medicine. It never spoils, lasts a long time, and children love it. This home mixture takes right hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing. Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for quick action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

PICK YOUR CORN EARLY!

Dry It In Crib, with Behlen All-Steel Ventilators and Tunnels

New, modern, fast way to dry corn. No more waiting for corn to dry in fields. Pick early, when mechanical pickers work best. Crib it, and let Behlen Ventilators and Tunnels dry corn faster than you ever dreamed possible.

GOODBYE TO CORN BORERS!

Agricultural colleges and experimental stations recommend picking early, to help control corn borers. You get your corn into cribs to dry, and shred or chop stalks and plow under before ground freezes, to kill the borers.

Behlen Tunnels not only ventilate, but are very handy for shelling. Just run sheller "drag" into tunnel, as at left. Pull out tunnel sections one by one. Corn drops onto conveyor belt. Saves hours of labor!

COME IN NOW!

Don't wait. We have Behlen All-Steel Ventilators and Corn Tunnels on hand now. But due to present industrial situation, we cannot promise we will get any more this fall. We strongly urge you to come in right away, while we are still able to supply you. Cost is less than for old-style wood ventilators.
